Herman Miller's former 1970s factory on the River Avon in Bath has been transformed by Grimshaw into the new campus for Bath Spa University School of Art and Design.

The NaughtOne Pullman Booth takes pride of place as luxurious and private collaboration spaces developed with AV integration in mind. Pullman is an acoustic haven and has discrete cable management built in, making it ideal for project work with small groups, or individual working.

Polly and Fold are also used throughout the campus both at standard and bar height to suit a variety of working habits.
